The image shows four vertical panels of wood grain, likely oak, arranged side-by-side. Each panel is separated by a thin, dark grey vertical strip. The wood grain patterns vary slightly between panels, showing different textures and knot formations. A bright yellow rectangular label is affixed to the rightmost panel, featuring the number '218' in a bold, black, serif font. The background above and below the wood panels is a plain, light-colored surface.

The image shows a horizontal row of four dark, marbled panels, possibly made of stone or a similar material. Each panel is separated by a thin, dark vertical strip. The marbling pattern is intricate, with white and light grey veins swirling and branching across a dark, almost black background. On the right side of the row, a bright yellow rectangular label is affixed, featuring the number '1500' in a bold, black, serif font. The overall appearance is that of a decorative architectural element or a display of material samples.
